Surge in area COVID-19 numbers continues

BY COLLIN OVERTON

Jefferson County reported 15 new cases of COVID-19 Sunday with more to come from the weekend as the incidence rate statewide and nationwide continues to climb.

The county has added nearly 200 cases in the past week, in line with the surge of COVID cases in Indiana. The Indiana State Department of Health reported 608 cases in its Monday report, with 297 of those considered active. Statewide positive cases, meanwhile, are hovering at just over 210,000 since March with a death count of 4,418.

Saturday brought the highest total count for new cases in Jefferson County, 45, around the same time students and teachers at local schools were waiting on their test results. A handful of cases among teachers and a shortage of substitutes at Madison Consolidated High School forced the high school to use an online learning day Monday, while students at Shawe Memorial Jr./Sr. High School and Pope John Elementary will not return until at least Nov. 17 due to an outbreak in that small student population.

Health department officials continued to urge residents to social distance from those outside their household and mask

Pfizer says virus vaccine looking 90% effective

BY LAURAN NEERGAARD AND LINDA A. JOHNSON
AP MEDICAL WRITERS

Pfizer Inc. said Monday that its COVID-19 vaccine may be a remarkable 90% effective, based on early and incomplete test results that nevertheless brought a big burst of optimism to a world desperate for the means to finally bring the catastrophic outbreak under control.

The announcement came less than a week after an election seen as a referendum on President Donald Trump's handling of the scourge, which has killed more than 1.2 million people worldwide, including almost a quarter-million in the United States alone.

"We're in a position potentially to be able to offer some hope," Dr. Bill Gruber, Pfizer's senior vice president of clinical development, told The Associated Press. "We're very encouraged."

Pfizer, which is developing the vaccine with its German partner BioNTech, now is on track to apply later this month for emergency-use approval from the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, once it has the necessary safety information in hand.

Even if all goes well, authorities have stressed it is unlikely any vaccine will arrive much before the end of the year, and the limited initial supplies will be rationed.

Dr. Anthony Fauci, the U.S. government's top infectious-disease expert, said the results suggesting 90% effectiveness are "just extraordinary," adding: "Not very many people expected it would be as high as that."

"It's going to have a major impact on everything we do with respect to COVID," Fauci said as Pfizer appeared to take the lead in the all-out global race by pharmaceutical companies and various countries to develop a well-tested vaccine against the virus.

Dr. Bruce Aylward, the World Health Organization's senior adviser, said Pfizer's vaccine could "fundamentally change the direction of this crisis" by March, when the U.N. agency hopes to start vaccinating high-risk groups.

Lack of subs amid virus forces move to online learning

BY COLLIN OVERTON

Madison Consolidated High School was forced to use a virtual learning day Monday due to a lack of available substitute teachers after several full-time staff members missed work due to possible COVID-19 exposure or other reasons.

Superintendent Jeff Studebaker said the entire district was down around five teachers as of 9:15 p.m. Sunday night and administrators were developing a plan to offset the losses when a sixth came in. Lacking enough regular substitutes to make up that difference, administrators

POST 5 DETECTIVES ARREST MAN FOR RAPE, OTHER CHARGES

An Oldham County, Kentucky, man has been charged with strangulation, rape and sodomy in connection with an investigation led by troopers at the Kentucky State Police Post 5 at Campbellsburg, Kentucky.

Moises Cruz Cortes, 26, of La Grange, is charged with Strangulation 1st Degree, Rape 1st Degree, and Sodomy 1st Degree. He is lodged at the Oldham County Jail on a $250,000 bond.

Lexington Metro Police notified KSP Post 12 in Frankfort on Wednesday, Nov. 4 that an adult female from Fayette County had come forward reporting that she had been raped at a location in La Grange a night earlier. Lexington Police transported the alleged victim to University of Kentucky Hospital, where a Post 12 Trooper gathered further information on the incident and based on that information, Post 5 detectives were able to identify Cortes as a suspect.

Upon further investigation by Post 5 Detectives, a search warrant was obtained for the residence at 117 Franklin Avenue in La Grange. During execution of the search warrant on Wednesday afternoon, numerous illegal substances and drug paraphernalia were located and seized. Cortes was transported to Post 5 in Campbellsburg for an interview. During that interview it was discovered that the encounter was initiated by a social media interaction and at the conclusion of the interview Cortes was arrested.

The investigation remains ongoing at this time.

County property taxes due today

The fall installment of Jefferson County Property taxes is due today and payment can be made at the Jefferson County Courthouse or at several other locations or options.

Due to COVID-19 pandemic, the treasurer's office is asking that only one person at a time come to the counter to be helped and that everybody maintain social distancing. To avoid long lines, most property owners might want to consider taking advantage of one of the other options for tax payment.

German American and Farmer's Bank will accept payment in their drive-through lanes only and there is a drop-off box located in front of the Jefferson County Courthouse for non-cash payments.

Tax payment can be mailed to: Jefferson County Treasurer, PO BOX 99, Madison, Indiana 47250 or Jefferson County Treasurer, 300 E Main Street, Madison, Indiana 47250, but they must be postmarked by today and include a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a receipt.

Payment may also be made online by credit card or e-check by following the link at the Jefferson County Government website, <https://jefferson-county.in.gov>. However, a 2.5% fee will be charged for credit card payments and a $1.00 fee per parcel will be added for E-Checks.

For payment by check, checks should be made payable to Jefferson County Treasurer and include a phone number. Residents should check their envelopes for multiple bills if they own more than one parcel but multiple bills may be placed in the same envelope.

For more information call the Treasurer's Office at 812-265-8900 or visit <https://jeffersoncounty.in.gov>.

Global markets, already buoyed by the victory of President-elect Joe Biden, rocketed on the news from Pfizer. The S&P 500 was up 3.3% in afternoon trading, while the Dow Jones Industrial Average gained more than 1,300 points. Pfizer jumped more than 11%. Other vaccine stocks were up as well.

Still, Monday's announcement doesn't mean for certain that a vaccine is imminent: This interim analysis, from an independent data monitoring board, looked at 94 infections recorded so far in a study that has enrolled nearly 44,000 people in the U.S. and five other countries.

Some participants got the vaccine, while others got dummy shots. Pfizer released no specific breakdowns, but for the vaccine to be 90% effective, nearly all the infections must have occurred in placebo recipients. The study is continuing, and Pfizer cautioned that the protection rate might change as more COVID-19 cases are added to the calculations.

Dr. Jesse Goodman of Georgetown University, former chief of the FDA's vaccine division, called the partial results "extremely promising" but ticked off many questions still to be answered, including how long the vaccine's effects last and whether it protects older people as well as younger ones.

Trump, who had suggested repeatedly during the presidential campaign that a vaccine could be ready by Election Day, tweeted: "STOCK MARKET UP BIG, VACCINE COMING SOON. REPORT 90% EFFECTIVE. SUCH GREAT NEWS!"

Biden, for his part, welcomed the news but cautioned that it could be many months before vaccinations become widespread in the U.S., and he warned Americans to rely on masks and social distancing in the meantime. He said the country still faces a "dark winter."

Confirmed infections in the U.S. eclipsed 10 million on Monday, the highest in the world. New cases are running at all-time highs of more than 100,000 per day. And tens of thousands more deaths are feared in the coming months, with the onset of cold weather and the holidays.

Pfizer's vaccine is among four candidates already in huge studies in the U.S., with still more being tested in other countries. Another U.S. company, Moderna Inc., also hopes to file an application with the FDA late this month.

Both companies' shots are made with a brand-new technology. These "mRNA vaccines" aren't made with the coronavirus itself, meaning there's no chance anyone could catch it from the shots. Instead, the vaccine contains a piece of genetic code that trains the immune system to recognize the spiked protein on the surface of the virus.

The timing of Pfizer's announcement is likely to feed unsubstantiated suspicions from Trump supporters that the pharmaceutical industry was withholding the news until after the election. Donald Trump Jr. tweeted: "The timing of this is pretty amazing. Nothing nefarious about the timing of this at all right?"

Pfizer has insisted that its work is not influenced by politics and that it was "moving at the speed of science." Its independent data monitors met on Sunday, analyzing the COVID-19 test results so far and notifying Pfizer.

Pfizer initially opted not to join the Trump administration's Operation Warp Speed, which helped fund a half-dozen vaccine makers' research and manufacturing scale-up. Pfizer instead said it has invested $2 billion of its own money in testing and expanding manufacturing capacity. But in July, Pfizer signed a contract to supply the U.S. with 100 million doses for $1.95 billion, assuming the vaccine is cleared by the FDA.

Pfizer said its only involvement in Operation Warp Speed is that those doses are part of the administration's goal to have 300 million doses of COVID-19 vaccines ready sometime next year.

The strong results were a surprise. Scientists have warned for months that any COVID-19 shot may be only as good as flu vaccines, which are about 50% effective and require yearly immunizations. Earlier this year, Fauci said he would be happy with a COVID-19 vaccine that was 60% effective.

Whatever the ultimate level of protection, no one knows if people will need regular vaccinations.

Also, volunteers in the study received a coronavirus test only if they developed symptoms, leaving unanswered whether vaccinated people could get infected but show no symptoms and unknowingly spread the virus.

Pfizer has estimated it could have 50 million doses available globally by the end of 2020, enough for 25 million people.

Public Citizen, the consumer advocacy group, called the release of the preliminary and incomplete data "bad science" and said that any enthusiasm over the results "must be tempered" until they are reviewed by the FDA and its independent experts.

"Crucial information absent from the companies' announcement is any evidence that the vaccine prevents serious COVID-19 cases or reduces hospitalizations and deaths due to the disease," the organization said.

Famous painter Ross’ former Indiana studio hosting exhibit

BY CHARLOTTE STEFANSKI
STAR PRESS

MUNCIE, Ind. — Over the past year, the historic Lucius L. Ball home at Minnetrista has transformed from two empty rooms into the Bob Ross Experience, reinvigorating the space where the iconic painter once filmed “The Joy of Painting.”

Ross, known for his landscape oil paintings, filmed his show at the house from 1983 to 1988. At the time, the house was owned by WIPB, the local PBS station.

“The Joy of Painting” ran for 11 years, capturing Ross’ quick techniques as he broke down the painting process into simple steps for viewers at home.

Ross died in 1995, but reruns of his iconic show continued to be broadcast across the country. Minnetrista’s exhibit, in partnership with Bob Ross Inc., will have the power of place.

“I think for the staff, knowing the history of the home, even beyond Bob Ross, something feels complete about having something in here like this,” said Katy Maggart, communications manager at Minnetrista. “Taking this home, that’s a historic Ball family home, and giving it new life feels good.”

Upon walking into the house, guests can read about Ross’ connection to Minnetrista and see one of his original paintings. The exhibit has six Ross paintings in total, and is only one of two museums to hold the painter’s work, the other being the Smithsonian.

“The paintings will rotate in and out throughout the year,” Maggart said. “So, hopefully, every time you come, there’s something new to look at. That was the intention.”

In one room, guests can see and stand where Ross filmed “The Joy of Painting” in a recreated studio setting. Minnetrista worked with Jim Needham, the general manager of WIPB at the time of the show, to revive the space.

From the outdated carpet to the original studio cameras, the room was reconstructed to how it looked in the 1980s. Guests can see, and sometimes touch, Ross’ easel, paints and brushes. There are other small items, including Ross’ afro pick, on bookshelves throughout the space.

“We wanted people to be able to come in and experience Bob in a real tangible way,” Maggart said. “We wanted this to be something people could come in and touch, explore and experience.”

The other room on the ground floor is set up like a living room in the ‘80s, complete with a CR2 television. The intention of the room is to recreate how people originally experienced Ross.

Along the back bookshelf are other artifacts of the time, like VHS tapes of “The Goonies” and “The Princess Bride.” There’s also a collection of Ross items, like a Chia Pet and bobble head of the painter, to show what an icon he was and remains.

“This is kind of a nod to the fact that people loved to invite Bob in,” Maggart said. “Of course, it’s kind of a nod to all of the fun stuff that’s come since. He became such an icon.”

The back hallway also features paintings done by Certified Ross Instructors (CRIs), who learn to paint like Ross and then instruct classes themselves. The four paintings are of the different seasons, and in Minnetrista’s way of inviting the painters in, they have the opportunity to add their own tree to the canvas.

Currently, the upstairs section of the building is under construction, and will eventually house a gallery and studio space. When open in 2021, Bob Ross painting classes will take place in the space.

Maggart said many have asked why Minnetrista is “doing Bob.” For the center, it’s the power of place. Ross almost exclusively filmed “The Joy of Painting” at the Lucius L. Ball home.

“That’s why it’s not a traveling exhibit,” Maggart said. “It can’t be, because it’s based on this space right here.”

Eventually it will be open to the general public, but for now the new exhibit will be open to ticket holders only, Maggart said. Tickets will be timed, partly due to COVID-19, and only 15 guests will be allowed in at a time.

Like Minnetrista’s other exhibits, the Bob Ross Experience will be open Wednesday through Sunday at various times. A temporary 10-month “Bob at Home” exhibit, opened on Oct. 31, in the Oakhurst Experience home, that will feature more than 30 Bob Ross paintings. Due to COVID-19, masks are required at Minnetrista.

The grand opening of the exhibit on Oct. 31 was expected to bring in hundreds, with workshops, behind-the-camera talks with people close to Ross and a Bob Ross costume parade and contest.

“A lot of people come in, and this is where Bob stood and everyone has a variety of reactions to that; some people cry and some people are cool,” Maggart said.

While Minnetrista tries to stay local in the work it does, Ross’ exhibit has received national and global attention, which is new territory for the center.

With Ross generally being a private and humble person, Maggart said the recognition perhaps would have been a little over-the-top for him. Nonetheless, she thinks he would be proud of the space.

The Nov. 6 search warrant was the second search warrant served on Weaver’s residence this year. On June 1, the CST executed a warrant to search Weaver’s home and seven people were arrested on various narcotic related charges. At that time Weaver was charged with possesdecided it made more sense to have a virtual learning day for students while the staff Monday to plan for the coming weeks.

Studebaker said two teachers had called in after testing positive, another called in because their child’s classroom had been quarantined for exposure and they were staying home to monitor them. The rest were for non-coronavirus reasons.

At the moment, 100 students and/or staff — including three entire classrooms — in the district are quarantined due to exposure. Studebaker said those classrooms have been quarantined both for safety reasons and the fact that it makes it easier on those teachers to have every student learning on the same platform.

While COVID-19 cases are increasing in each building, the spread doesn’t seem to be school-related, but due to exposure to over family members who are infected or exposed as well as other points of exposure outside the district, Studebaker said. Last week another school system in the county, Prince of Peace Catholic Schools, announced it would move to live virtual learning until Nov. 17 due to several students testing positive. Only the system’s preschool will meet in the classroom.

Canaan Community Academy also announced it would not have classes on Monday or Tuesday, but attempts to speak to a school representative were unsuccessful on Monday.

Studebaker said the lack of substitute teachers helped steer Madison toward using Monday for planning.

He said upper administrators spent Monday discussing a course of action going forward because “it doesn’t look like that situation’s going to get much better,” Studebaker said. He noted it was already hard to get subs before COVID-19, but the pandemic has made it even worse.

“There aren’t subs out there to hire, is the problem. We added a few at the beginning of the year, but there are some people out there who would not work,” he said.

Church to honor anniversary of shipwreck

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

DETROIT — Mariners’ Church of Detroit will observe the 45th anniversary Sunday of the sinking of the Edmund Fitzgerald during its yearly memorial service for those who have died in Great Lakes shipwrecks.

The event will be live-streamed on Facebook for the first time, said the Rev. Jeffrey M. Hubbard, rector at the church also known as “The Maritime Sailors’ Cathedral.”

“This year, we’re especially mindful of the challenges first responders face in protecting our freedom, our rights and our health,” Hubbard said. “That includes all the current and past sailors who ply the Great Lakes waterways. As beautiful as they are, the Great Lakes can be incredibly dangerous. This service honors and remembers those who have perished over the centuries.”

More than 10,000 lives have been lost in the roughly 6,000 shipwrecks on record in the five inland seas.

The S.S. Edmund Fitzgerald sank Nov. 10, 1975, during a storm on Lake Superior. The vessel was carrying a load of iron ore pellets to a Detroit steel mill when it plunged to the bottom 17 miles from Whitefish Point in Michigan’s Upper Peninsula. All 29 crewmen were lost.

The Rev. Richard Ingalls, then pastor of Mariners’ Church, rang its “brotherhood bell” 29 times to honor them as described in Gordon Lightfoot’s ballad, “The Wreck of the Edmund Fitzgerald.” As is customary, it will be rung again during the Sunday memorial.

The service at the 178-year-old church regularly attracts sailors, veterans, recreational boaters and their families. Those wishing to attend this year must email the church beforehand at info@marinerschurchofdetroit.org because of social distancing requirements.

up at indoor public spaces regardless of social distancing and wear masks at outdoor public spaces if social distancing cannot be achieved. In addition, you should avoid large crowds (indoors or outdoors), stay home if you are sick and practice good hand washing and hand sanitizing. One of the bonuses to wearing a face mask and practicing good hand washing is that it also helps protect against acquiring the more common seasonal influenza.

Those who have been in contact with an infected person should stay home for 14 days after their last exposure, try to maintain a 6-foot distance from other household members and use separate restrooms if possible. In addition, they should avoid travel, wash hands frequently, wear a face mask when around others, monitor for symptoms and seek testing.

Nearby Switzerland County has reported only 156 cases since March — out of just over 2,000 residents tested — but a county-high 19 new cases were reported Friday and an adult care facility there is currently dealing with an outbreak.

Meanwhile, Trimble County had four new and 18 overall active cases as of the North Central District Health Department’s report on Friday. Trimble has only had 124 total cases since March and one death, but an average of more than 25 cases per day over the past week has pushed the county into the red “critical” category, according to the Kentucky Department for Public Health’s report on Sunday.

Trimble County Public Schools decided to proceed with in-person classes this week, promising to monitor COVID numbers while enacting stricter guidelines at last Friday’s football game and saying it would most likely cancel middle school basketball games for this week.

Anyone wishing to be tested for COVID-19 in Trimble County can call the local health department at 502-255-7701 to schedule an appointment.

The Three Rivers District Health Department’s report on Friday announced seven new cases in Carroll County, bringing the active count to 22. Carroll is currently rated as “accelerated” by the Kentucky Department for Public Health with an incidence rate of 22.8 cases per 100,000 people.

A recent outbreak among a few staff members at Carroll County Middle School forced the school to take three non-traditional instruction days last week, but students at the junior high returned Monday. So far, the district is also moving forward with plans to continue in-person instruction while still possible.

“To date, our other schools are not dealing with COVID-19 to this degree,” Superintendent Danny Osborne said in an online statement about the middle school last week. “However, we will continue to closely monitor the situation at all of our schools and will be in close communication with our health department and other authorities.”

To schedule an appointment for COVID testing in Carroll County, call the Carroll County Health Center at (859) 962-8506.

Rush of visitors at Red River Gorge sparks call for changes

BY REBECCA REYNOLDS YONKER
ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOUISVILLE — One of the Appalachia’s most beloved natural attractions is becoming a victim of its own popularity.

A sharp increase in the number of visitors to Kentucky’s Red River Gorge has the U.S. Forest Service considering changes that would improve safety and accessibility for people and add more protection for delicate wilderness areas, officials said.

The sandstone arches and towering cliffs in the 42,000-acre Kentucky geological area has long attracted hundreds of thousands of hikers, rock-climbers, kayakers and campers each year, but the number exploded this spring, said Tim Eling, a spokesman for the Daniel Boone National Forest, which manages the area. He said that after the coronavirus pandemic hit, the number of visitors spiked. That led to jammed roadways, parking problems, more visitors needing to be rescued and new threats to rare natural special and delicate archeological sites.

The gorge is home to rare plants like the white-haired goldenrod and rare animals including the Virginia big-eared bat. There are also several archeological sites such as rock shelters that have fragile artifacts from Native Americans and early settlers.

“The popularity of recreation in this region has grown much faster than our agency anticipated and, with that growth, comes tremendous opportunity and significant challenges,” Cumberland District Ranger Jon Kazmierski said in a statement.

The challenges led forestry officials to develop new recommendations to protect the Red River Gorge. A virtual public meeting Tuesday evening will explain the recommendations and seek public feedback on them.

It is the first time in 12 years that the Forest Service has sought public feedback for changes at the gorge. Dozens of public planning meetings were held from 2005 to 2008, which led to several actions including the opening of a visitor center, the start of a backcountry ranger program and working with volunteer groups on trail maintenance.

Officials are now recommending some higher profile changes that would affect backcountry camping policies, trail access and parking, Eling said. He said ideas are mostly conceptual right now so they can gauge public opinion through meetings and surveys and then draft more detailed proposals that would likely be presented early next year.

“We want to provide high-quality recreation for visitors to keep coming back,” Eling said.

People get frustrated when they can’t find a place to park or get lost on an unofficial trail, he said.

Kentucky’s Red River Gorge is home to rare plants like the white-haired goldenrod and rare animals including the Virginia big-eared bat. There are also several archeological sites such as rock shelters that have fragile artifacts from Native Americans and early settlers.

A multitude of unauthorized trails created by hikers are not marked or maintained, and that has caused more problems with increasing visitors.

“People getting lost because its not marked, people getting hurt, having to do search and rescues, impacts to sensitive resources because the trail goes through an archeological site that people didn’t know about because its an unofficial trail,” Eling said.

“We want to correct those things and make that a better experience for people and also protect the sensitive resources that are in that area,” he said.

In addition to changes for the gorge, Forest Service officials are seeking public comment as they draft a plan that will guide decisions affecting the Red River, which flows through the gorge.

Trump faces long odds in challenging vote counts

BY MARYCLAIRE DALE
ASSOCIATED PRESS

Republican surrogates for President Donald Trump resumed their legal fight Monday to try to stop the vote count in key battleground states, including Pennsylvania and Michigan, but faced long odds given the Electoral College tally and recent court rulings that found no evidence of widespread vote fraud.

While some Republican officials invoked the Trump mantra that only “legal votes” should be counted, others emerged to counter the campaign narrative and urge voters, and perhaps the president, to support the results.

“The process has not failed our country in more than 200 years, and it is not going to fail our country this year,” said Republican Sen. Susan Collins of Maine, who won her reelection bid and has congratulated President-elect Joe Biden on his victory.

Still, Trump lawyers soldiered on six days after the election, just as personal counsel Rudy Giuliani had promised they would during a surreal weekend press conference outside a landscaping storefront in northeast Philadelphia.

Giuliani denounced the city’s vote count — which fell about 4-1 for Biden, giving the Democrat the win Saturday in both Pennsylvania and the U.S. election — as “extremely troubling.”

Across the country, Republicans have complained about problems with the signatures, secrecy envelopes and postal marks on ballots, the inability of their poll watchers to scrutinize them and the extensions granted for mail-in ballots to arrive.

However, judges have largely rejected the Republican challenges over the past week as the campaign sought to interrupt the vote count as it leaned toward Biden. Trump has yet to concede the election, even as the former vice president claimed victory and got to work on his transition plans.

At the U.S. Supreme Court, 10 Republican state attorneys general filed an amicus brief Monday to support a challenge to Pennsylvania’s decision to count mail-in ballots that arrived through Friday. The Pennsylvania Supreme Court had unanimously upheld the three-day extension set by Democratic state officials concerned about Postal Service delays and the COVID-19 pandemic. The attorneys general say the court usurped a power reserved for state lawmakers.

The U.S. Supreme Court had declined to fast-track the challenge, but the vote was 4-4, and three justices expressed reservations. Republicans now hope to try again with new Supreme Court Justice Amy Coney Barrett on the court.

“The decision provided a window of time after Election Day, when the preliminary results were announced, in which unscrupulous actors could attempt to influence a close Presidential election,” the Republican Attorneys General Association said in the brief.

Earlier Monday, an anti-abortion law center in Michigan filed suit to complain about vote counting procedures in Wayne County. An appeals court in Michigan, meanwhile, asked the Trump campaign to refile a case submitted last week, saying the appeal was incomplete.

And in Arizona, the Trump campaign asked in a lawsuit filed Saturday for the right to inspect thousands of in-person ballots filled out on Election Day in the Phoenix area, alleging that poll workers had mishandled them.

In Georgia, where Biden has a small lead over Trump but the race remains too early to call, a state election official pledged Monday to investigate any ballot problems they find.

“When the margins are this tight, every little thing matters,” said Gabriel Sterling, who led the state’s implementation of a new voting system for the secretary of state’s office.

Still, he expressed frustration over efforts to shake the public’s faith in the electoral system.

“The facts are the facts, regardless of outcomes,” Sterling said.

Alabama, Irish sit at 1 and 2

Indiana moves into the top 10

BY RALPH D. RUSSO
AP COLLEGE FOOTBALL WRITER

Notre Dame and Indiana both made dramatic moves in this week's Associated Press college football poll after impressive conference wins on Saturday.

Notre Dame moved up two spots to No. 2 on Sunday after upsetting Clemson in a dramatic double-overtime game Saturday night while the Hoosiers moved up three spots after beating Michigan to receive their best ranking since they were No. 10 in 1969.

Alabama is No. 1 in The Associated Press college football poll for the first time this year, extending its record of consecutive seasons with at least one week on top of the rankings to 13.

Ohio State remained No. 3. Clemson gave up the top spot for the first time this season and landed at No. 4.

The Crimson Tide, who had an open date, received 59 of 62 first-place votes. Notre Dame, which has its best ranking since it was No. 1 at the end of the 2012 regular season, received two first-place votes. Ohio State got one.

Texas A&M moved up two spots to No. 5, the Aggies' best ranking since they finished fifth to end the 2012 season.

Florida jumped two spots to No. 6 after beating Georgia to snap a three-game losing streak against its SEC East rival. The Bulldogs fell eight spots to a season-low 13th.

No. 8 BYU and No. 9 Miami round out the top 10.

POLL POINTS

It's no surprise when Alabama reaches No. 1, but it's always historic.

The Crimson Tide's streak of seasons with at least one appearance at No. 1 started in Nick Saban's second year as coach in Tuscaloosa. The Tide reached the top of the poll for the first time under Saban on Nov. 2, 2008, the day after beating Arkansas State.

No. 1 Texas lost that week at Texas Tech — Graham Harrell to Michael Crabtree in the final seconds as the Red Raiders shocked the Longhorns — to open the door for Alabama to ascend.

The second-longest streak of consecutive years appearing at No. 1 in AP poll history belongs to Miami, which went seven seasons from 1986-92.

This No. 1 appearance is the 92nd under Saban and Alabama's record 123rd overall. Take away Alabama's other No. 1 appearances and just Saban's appearances at No. 1 would rank as the fourth-most in college history behind Ohio State's (105), Oklahoma's (101) and Notre Dame's (98). That's also one more than Southern California (91) has ever had.

IN

- No. 23 Northwestern is ranked for the first time since the Wildcats finished the 2018 season at No. 21.
- No. 25 Louisiana-Lafayette returns to the rankings after cracking them earlier this season for the first time in almost 80 years.

OUT

- Boise State dropped out after getting run over by BYU on Friday night.
- Michigan is out for the first time this season after falling to 1-2. The Wolverines were last unranked while eligible for the poll at the end of 2017.

Charlestown spoils Cubs' opener, 57-45

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

CHARLESTOWN — Like an old tractor that has been left behind the barn for the past decade, Madison's girls basketball team showed more rust than metal in its season opener at Charlestown on Saturday.

Battered, bruised and not at full strength, the Cubs briefly took the lead early in the third quarter but were then pushed aside by a 32-17 closing run by Charlestown as the host Pirates pulled away for a 57-45 win.

Madison coach Sonja Bowyer was disappointed by the loss but considering the circumstances, she wasn't all that surprised. But she certainly wasn't going to make excuses.

"We had to throw a lot of different combinations out there tonight and I felt like we knew our plays, we knew what we were trying to do, we just didn't execute," Bowyer said. "I felt like there were some times where we did look pretty good but we let them get the momentum and never got it back."

Senior Lundun Perry, one of the Cubs' top players, had just returned from COVID quarantine and was forced to watch the game from the sidelines while other returners Jade Nutley, Taylor Lynch and Daesja Jay were playing with a series of nagging injuries. The rest of Madison's roster was made up of newcomers, a talented group of players that were nonetheless making their first varsity appearances.

"We knew coming into the game that we weren't going to have (Lundun) with all of the craziness with the quarantines. She didn't have enough practices in and that's the way it goes," Bowyer said. "Obviously we would have liked to have had her out there and we can't wait to have her back on Tuesday ... Having her on the floor gives us a completely different lineup."

For much of the game, the Cubs were able to stay within striking distance of Charlestown, which started two freshmen and a sophomore of its own. Although Madison never led over the first two quarters, the Pirates' biggest lead in that span was just five and Charlestown led just 25-22 at halftime.

Madison opened the second half with its best stretch of the game. Ratcheting up the intensity, Taylor Lynch opened the frame with a 3-pointer, Jade Nutley bullied her way to three free throws and the Cubs took what turned out to be their only lead of the game at 28-25 with 5:26 left in the quarter. Charlestown (1-0) retook the lead thanks to free throws on back-to-back possessions to kick-start what ended up being a 14-0 run. Madison's offense ground to a halt as the Pirates built a 15-point lead in the fourth quarter during a stretch where the Cubs managed just three made field goals from the floor.

Madison regrouped enough to pull within 10 (53-43) with 3:17 to go but got no closer, managing just two more points as the Pirates pulled away.

The Cubs shot just 36% from the floor (16-of-44) and committed 19 turnovers in the game. Nutley continued her march toward 1,000 career points by scoring 21 on 8-of-16 shooting, but nobody else on the team had more than six.

Senior Skylar Cochrane scored 20 points and freshman Kennedy Coleman added 13 points to

No. 13 Indiana finally finds way to beat No. 23 Michigan

BY MICHAEL MAROT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

BLOOMINGTON — After the postgame party was over, after Indiana fans chanted "We want Bama!" and coach Tom Allen went crowd-surfing in the Hoosiers' locker room once again, Michael Penix Jr. started looking ahead.

Penix and company want more — much more.

Penix passed for 342 yards and a career-high three touchdowns, and No. 13 Indiana beat No. 23 Michigan 38-21 on Saturday for its first victory against the Wolverines in 33 years.

"When we play a great team like that, we have to make sure we play great football. We did that," he said. "But it's just the beginning because we still have some more games to follow up on."

With a chunk play here, a free play there and a few dinks and dunks thrown in to keep drives alive, Penix helped Indiana snap a 24-game losing streak in the series — tied for the longest active skid in the Football Bowl Subdivision. It was the Hoosiers' first win against the Wolverines since Oct. 24, 1987, just their second in 41 games and only the second in the 21 games played at Memorial Stadium.

"I was a senior in high school the last time we beat Michigan and I'm 50 years old, so that's not something that happened yesterday," a hoarse Allen said. "I remember sitting here a few years ago when we lost in overtime to Michigan and that one hurt. I was just determined we were going to get this done."

The Hoosiers (3-0) earned their fourth consecutive Big Ten win. If they match the school record next week at Michigan State, it could set up a showdown between the East Division's only unbeaten teams Nov. 21 at No. 3 Ohio State.

Joe Milton threw for 344 yards and three touchdowns, but Michigan (1-2) dropped its second straight game — turning up the pressure on coach Jim Harbaugh in his sixth season at the school. The Wolverines don't have a top-15 road win since beating Notre Dame in 2006.

"I'm still very excited," Milton said. "As I have said multiple times, I love this team. Very talented. They play extremely hard."

They just made too many mistakes — and the Hoosiers took full advantage.

Indiana's Stevie Scott III ran for 97 yards and two second-half scores. Ty Fryfogle caught seven passes for a career-best 142 yards — all in the first half — and Whop Philyor finished with 11 receptions for 79 yards. The defense allowed only 13 yards rushing while forcing two turnovers, and Charles Campbell kicked a career-long 52-yard field goal.

Allen challenged his players with a physical practice Wednesday and they responded on game day. Penix was 30 of 50, helping Indiana convert nine of 16 third downs.

Defensively, the Hoosiers also took charge. They forced Michigan into three-and-outs on three of its first four series and only allowed the Wolverines to take five snaps in Indiana territory through the first three quarters.

Then, just when it appeared the Wolverines might rally as they've done so many times previously, Jaylin Williams undercut Milton's pass

Carroll rolls into playoffs with 60-0 win over Trimble

Raiders end season with 1-7 record

BY ROB LAFARY

Carroll County football has been building momentum ever since starting the season 1-4 and the Panthers' final push of the regular season brought their most dominate performance to date in a 60-0 rout of rival Trimble County on Friday night in Bedford.

The game marked the first matchup between the two rival schools since Sept. 29, 2017. Carroll has now won nine-straight in the series and has scored 30 points or more in nine of the last 10 games.

The Panthers have seen their offense put up big numbers throughout the year but Friday night's game saw Carroll County score at will and build a large lead early on.

Trimble County's Tucker Smith threw a pass for a first down to wide receiver Ray Lafferty on the first play of the game but the Raiders were forced to punt the football away shortly thereafter. Carroll scored its touchdown on the ensuing drive when Kyle Guenther ran 43 yards to go with a successful two-point conversion pass from Keishaun Mumphrey to Jacobi Brewer. Guenther scored again with 6:12 remaining in the first frame, running 10 yards to the end zone to push the margin to 14-0.

Carroll then got the ball back on two occasions in the final minutes of the first quarter and scored on both possessions. Brewer broke free for a 70-yard touchdown sprint and Mumphrey scored a touchdown on a quarterback keeper from 33 yards out before converting on another keeper for a successful two-point conversion with just 54 seconds left in the quarter.

All that left Trimble trailing 30-0 but the Raiders were able to slow Carroll's assault at the start of the second quarter before the Panthers regained their footing when Mumphrey was pushed to the end zone on a 1-yard run with 6:52 left in the first half for a 36-point lead that triggered a running clock for the remainder of the game. Guenther's two-point conversion was followed by his third touchdown of the night, a 19-yard catch on a throw by Harrison Felts and another two points by Brewer.

The Panthers went on to score twice more in the second half before the clock ran out. Mumphrey opened the third quarter with a 75-yard kickoff return for a touchdown and Brewer scored on his second run of the night.

The victory extended Carroll's win streak to four games and marked the third game during that streak that the team scored 32 points or more. The 60 points scored was the most allowed this season by a Trimble defense that has allowed 30 points or more in the final six games of the season.

Trimble County finished its first varsity season since 2017 with a 1-7 record and loses just three seniors — Dylan Chandler, Malachi Aguirre and Tucker Smith — leaving the program optimistic about the future when the 2021 rolls around.

Carroll County (5-4) now sets its sights on the postseason as the Class 2A KHSAA Commonwealth Gridiron Bowl kicks off in two weeks. The KHSAA has pushed back the start of the playoffs two weeks to allow schools more time to deal with the a growing COVID-19 pandemic. Carroll is currently slated to host Gallatin County in the first round with that date and time yet to be determined.

Small defensive miscues prove costly for Colts vs. Ravens

BY MICHAEL MAROT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — Darius Leonard and DeForest Buckner expect the Indianapolis Colts' defense to ace each week's test — regardless of the challenge.

It's why they consider Sunday's 24-10 loss to Baltimore a failure.

"We're a good team, but we've got to be way better," said Leonard, the playmaking Pro Bowl linebacker. "I think they rushed for 112 yards overall. That can't happen."

Never mind the Colts (5-3) held the league's top rushing attack to its second-lowest total this season, its first sub-140 yard game in four weeks and well below its per-game average of 178.7 yards.

Never mind Indy kept Lamar Jackson pretty much in check. He was 19 of 23 with 170 yards while carrying 13 times for 58 yards.

Never mind Ravens coach Jim Harbaugh, who has presided over some of the league's top defenses during his 13-year tenure, praised Indy's young, vastly improved unit.

It wasn't good enough for Leonard or Buckner because they know what's still on the docket.

Sunday's matchup with Baltimore (6-2) was the start of a brutal four-game stretch that includes two MVP quarterbacks — Jackson and Aaron Rodgers — and three contests against last season's conference runners-up. They'll face Tennessee twice and Green Bay in two weeks. The Ravens also were the AFC's top seed last year and all four could be contenders again this season.

To those who wondered whether the Colts defense could hold up against some of the league's top teams and best talents, the Ravens game certainly provided some promising signs. Indy allowed only 13 yards rushing in the first half and forced Baltimore out of its traditional run-first philosophy in the second half.

But Leonard and Buckner, the Pro Bowl defensive tackle, know Indy can — and must — play even better during the second half of the season to make the playoffs.

"Guys played hard, we competed, but it's the little mistakes that we need to clean up to come out with a win," Buckner said. "As a whole, we have to step up. Just do your job and make sure you're doing it at a high rate and eventually somebody will make a play and we just didn't come up with them (today)."

The truth is there was plenty of blame to go around for the loss.

Rookie running back Jonathan Taylor started fast before fumbling as he fought to pick up extra yards. Chuck Clark scooped up the loose ball and sprinted 65 yards for the Ravens first score, successfully hurdling quarterback Philip Rivers en route to the end zone, to make it 7-7.

And after Buckner pried the ball out of Gus Edwards' hands near the goal line to stop one Baltimore scoring chance, Philip Rivers responded on the very next play by underthrowing Marcus Johnson on a deep pass near midfield. Marcus Peters picked off the pass, which was initially ruled incomplete and later overturned when Harbaugh successfully challenged the call.

Ten plays later, Edwards scored the go-ahead touchdown.

"It was just underthrown, a poor throw," Rivers said. "The bottom line is I shouldn't have thrown it short. You throw it short, you're leaving it in other people's hands and you never know what will happen."

Coach Frank Reich also gambled and lost.

Down 21-10, he opted to play for a touchdown on fourth-and-1 from the Baltimore 16. When Rivers dropped back, the Ravens brought pressure up the middle and forced an errant throw with 5:29 to go, all but sealing the outcome.

No. 4 Notre Dame sacks No. 1 Clemson, 47-40, in double OT

BY RALPH D. RUSSO
AP COLLEGE FOOTBALL WRITER

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — When Clemson's desperate attempt to convert a fourth-and-forever ended in a scum, Notre Dame quarterback Ian Book tossed his helmet as he sprinted onto the field to celebrate with his teammates.

Within seconds, thousands of fans joined in, rushing the field amid a pandemic for a postgame party that most definitely did not meet the CDC's social-distancing guidelines.

"When fans stormed the field, it was fun," Book said.

Kyren Williams put the Irish ahead with a 3-yard touchdown run in the second overtime and No. 4 Notre Dame shut down top-ranked Clemson with a couple of sacks to seal a 47-40 win Saturday night.

The first victory over a No. 1 team in 27 years for the Fighting Irish can be added to the list of famous streak-breakers in Notre Dame history: Catholics vs. Convicts in 1988 snapped Miami's 36-game regular-season winning streak and the shutout of Oklahoma in 1957 broke the Sooners' record 47-game roll.

Clemson (7-1, 6-1) had won 36 consecutive regular-season games and had not lost to an Atlantic Coast Conference team since 2017. The Fighting Irish (7-0, 6-0), playing in the ACC only because of the coronavirus pandemic, brought them all to a halt.

Who knows where this victory should rank in Notre Dame lore, but considering the setting and this weird pandemic-altered season, the win is probably its most bizarre. "I had told our team in our walkthrough today: 'Just want you to know when we win this game the fans are going to storm the field. With COVID being what it is, we need to get off the field,'" Irish coach Brian Kelly said. "I beat them off the field."

Williams ran for 140 yards and three touchdowns and Book, the fifth-year senior quarterback, led a 91-yard drive in the final two minutes of regulation to tie it at 33 on a 4-yard touchdown pass to Avery Davis with 22 seconds left.

After Williams gave Notre Dame the lead on the first possession of the second OT, the Irish pushed Clemson back with back-to-back sacks on DJ Uaigalelei by Adetokumbo Ogundeji and Daelin Hayes to set up a third-and-24.

"I took a sack in the red zone," Uaigalelei said. "... I can't do that."

The five-star freshman quarterback's third-down pass was broken up and his final completion on fourth down was way short of the line to gain. A couple of laterals didn't help and the Irish and their fans went wild.

The Fighting Irish have won 13 consecutive games and they snapped an 11-game losing streak against top-five teams while beating No. 1 for the first time since taking down Florida State in 1993 at Notre Dame Stadium.

Uaigalelei, starting in place of Trevor Lawrence for a second week, passed for 439 yards, the most ever by a Notre Dame opponent. Lawrence was on the sideline for this one, a few days out of isolation after having COVID-19.

Clemson coach Dabo Swinney said Lawrence will return to practice Monday.

The biggest game at Notre Dame Stadium since No. 1 Southern California beat the Irish with the Push Bush in 2005 had 11,011 in attendance, mostly students, because of pandemic restrictions.

When it was over, they poured onto the field — coronavirus be damned.

lead Charlestown, which shot 51% (20-of-39) from the floor and held a 33-25 rebounding edge.

“Overall, we have got to keep moving forward. I think there were a ton of things we improved on from the scrimmage so there is only room to improve from this game,” Bowyer said.

and returned the interception 36 yards to set up Scott’s second TD run for the final score.

THE TAKEAWAY

Michigan: The Wolverines’ mis-take-prone defense couldn’t get off the field, and the offense couldn’t get in sync until they were down three scores. This season’s turnover-free streak ended and starting defensive end Aidan Hutchinson left in the first quarter with an injury.

Indiana: The Hoosiers answered some questions about their ability to contend for a division title or conference championship. The defense has played well all three weeks and on Saturday, the offense was finally in rhythm all four quarters. They’ve won eight of their last 10 league games.

UP NEXT

Michigan: Is scheduled to host No. 10 Wisconsin next Saturday but the Badgers have had their last two games canceled because of a COVID-19 outbreak.

Indiana: Will try to build on the momentum next Saturday at Michigan State.

Connecting with grandkids

Dear Annie: It sounds like Shut-Out Grandma's daughter-in-law has borderline personality disorder. One of your readers' advice to read "Stop Walking on Eggshells" by Paul Mason and Randi Kreger was great. It was very helpful for me. — Another Grandma

Dear Another Grandma: Thank you for writing. As you will see in the next letter, yet another grandma has some wonderful suggestions.

consideration to the gifts, not just pick up a toy in giant department store. That bypasses the negative situation entirely and turns it into a positive thing. Her granddaughter might forget what her grandma says, but she will never forget what she does, especially the special care packages. I'm a happier grandma now, and my granddaughter loves me. - Happier Grandma

Dear Happier Grandma: These are fantastic ideas for getting around an otherwise-sticky situation. Thanks for writing.

Dear Annie: During the COVID-19 pandemic, it has proven very difficult for my daughter, who is a freshman in college, to meet new friends. All of her classes are online; she lives at home; and most of her friends went out of state to college. Our county has some of the strictest quarantine rules in the country, which limits her options. I'm worried about her mental health. This time in a young person's life is very difficult in the best of circumstances. Do you have any ideas for young people to connect with others during this unprecedented time? — Concerned Mom

Dear Concerned Mom: This is such a difficult time for all of us. I am sorry that your daughter had to start one of the most exciting times of her life virtually. This is a time to think outside the box and be flexible with different and new ways to communicate with friends. She could schedule a call, Zoom, FaceTime or Houseparty with friends, especially those out of state. Encourage her to go for an outdoor walk with friends who live in your county and are dealing with the same strict quarantine rules. I know it is not the same. Try and remember that this is a moment in time that will pass soon.

Communication is needed ASAP

Dear Annie: My boyfriend is 48, and I am 39, and we have been together since May 2015. We haven't made too many public appearances since being together. I have two children, a 12-year-old boy and a 15-year-old girl. They love him dearly. He has one child, a 14-year-old girl, who barely communicates with my children and me.

When we met, he was six months out of a two-year relationship, and I was eight months out of a 12-year marriage. We met on a dating site. Neither of us was looking for a relationship at the time. My children met him in June 2015, and I met his daughter the next month. My kids and I are adventurous and like the outdoors. He and his daughter, not so much. He works in engineering, and I'm a nurse. We are similar and opposite at the same time. I love action, comedy and dramas, and he likes zombie movies and action.

His daughter's mom and I have had an altercation. The cause of the disagreement was that she wanted to ruin our relationship, and he did nothing about it. I then had to step in after being frustrated. We bumped heads quite a bit, due to his daughter's mom. She ended up living across the street from us after we moved in together.

My concern is that we are not talking about marriage or even an engagement.

More than a year after buying a home and we're still playing house, without moving forward. I have brought this to his attention because I want to know what's next. Each time I bring it up, I feel as if he blows me off and does not want to talk about it. He always says, "When I marry someone, I want to make sure they're the one."

I have mentioned marriage at least five times, and now I'm ready to give up on this relationship. He always wants me to tell people that we have three children, but he's not changing the status legally. I don't think that I should wait on him to make up his mind to decide our future, as it's been over five years. I think it has a lot to do with his money; maybe he thinks I'm after it or something. That isn't the case. The proof is that I would have stayed with my ex-husband. I feel as if I'm wasting my time and living a lie. The lie is that he'll probably never marry me and eventually I'll move on. I have asked him to see a therapist with me over and over, but it hasn't happened yet. I was going to pick a therapist, but he said that he would, but again, nothing. — Tired of Waiting

Dear Tired: Divorce can be traumatic. It sounds like your boyfriend might need time before he is ready to tie the knot. His comment about marrying "the one" is hurtful. You might be correct that it's time to move on. However, before making a decision, you need to tell him all that you're feeling. People are not mind readers, and so much of a healthy relationship is communication. Rather than waiting for him to decide what he wants, decide what you want and then tell him exactly what that is.

Therapy is doubly important because the lives of three children are at stake. His ex-wife living across the street is something that a professional should be able to help you and your boyfriend sort out.

All CDC guidelines for COVID-19 were followed during the ride and at the Moose Lodge. Masks were removed for the picture only.
